

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CHICAGO (August 17, 2010) – Compliance11, Inc. and ByAllAccounts today announced a partnership that revolutionizes personal trading compliance. By adding best-in-class account aggregation through ByAllAccounts, Compliance11 customers can now automatically obtain feeds from thousands of brokerages for use in personal trading supervision. The integrated product went live yesterday as part of Compliance11's 2010 Summer Release.

"Integrating ByAllAccounts account aggregation capability with our software changes the face of compliance automation," said Tad Mitchell, Compliance11 President and Chief Operations Officer. "Typically, only larger brokerage firms provide electronic brokerage feeds for Compliance purposes, and this leaves compliance staff handling paper statements for unsupported brokerages. The new ByAllAccounts integration makes it possible to receive almost 100% of brokerage data electronically. This makes it cost effective for almost all firms to automate personal trading supervision."

"Compliance supervision is yet another critical, but time-consuming function that can benefit from our account aggregation technology," said James Carney, ByAllAccounts Chief Executive Officer. "Compliance11 has built a strong reputation for reducing the cost and complexity of compliance supervision, and adding account aggregation further streamlines the process by removing the tedious, time-consuming and error-prone steps of manual data aggregation."

Now when Compliance11 customers disclose their brokerage accounts, data feeds are immediately activated via ByAllAccounts. Confirmations and holdings flow into the system daily and are analyzed according to company specific business rules. (Compliance11 still supports traditional direct feeds from major brokerages.)
